A TRAM CO'S MEETING.

HEAVY TRACTION IS TAKING BY THE REAR.

Marshall Lane and the Express Street.

(London Times)

The ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Hawaiian Tractionways Company Limited was held on September 30th at the Cannon Street Hotel, London. Colonel C. M. Davidson presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, stated that the cause of the decline in the profits was the enforcement of martial law, which had been necessitated by the change from a monarchy to a republic. Owing to this the hours of movement were curtailed and the usual profits of the company were lost. The profits of the company had thus been reduced by about $5,000, but if the traffic returns of the past few months were maintained they would do very well. They obtained permission from the Legislature in 1919 to use electric traction, but up to the present they had been unable to recommend its adoption to the shareholders, owing to the expense both of the installation and conversion. In America electric traction was greatly used, and no doubt it had an advantage in many instances over horse traction. Some company promoter brought forward a bill for electric traction in opposition to this company's, but the measure was thrown out in Honolulu. There still, however, remained a desire for electric traction on their tramways, and the directors were taking every step to inquire the price of the conversion and the cost of generating, and renewal. It was very difficult to obtain correct details as regarded renewal, electric traction accounts not yet being perfectly clear on this head. They would wish to convert, run, and renew the system themselves, but they must be assured that the shareholders would receive benefit as well as the traveling public. When they had the whole information ready they would report to the shareholders and call a meeting of them before doing anything further in the matter. Colonel C. S. Macdonald seconded the motion, which was adopted.
